

Reproducible Research

Marco Chiapello

July 3, 2016

Center for Proteomics
University of Cambridge
mc983@cam.ac.uk

Introduction

Replication is the ultimate standard by which scientific claims are judged [?]
The fact that an analysis is reproducible does not guarantee the quality, correctness, or validity of the published results.